FINANCE AND TRADE.

IN FINANCIAL MATTERS everything is too dull for any novelty to arise to arrest attention, except the strange pranks and vicissitudes of gold, and, therefore, everything that indicates what the immediate future may be is regarded with great interest. The prospects of the bread stuffs markets seem to carry our coming prosperity with them. The present appearance of things indicate low prices for cotton at the opening of the new season, but grain is on the ascending scale. The following from the New York Bulletin, of Tuesday, touches this subject: "The French crops have suffered very severely from the heavy and protracted rains, and not alone in the flooded districts, but throughout a large surface of the country. Accounts represent the south, southwest, southeast and center as having suffered heavily from beating-down and from 'rust;' so that, in those sections, neither the quantity nor the quality are expected to reach 'a small This condition of things doubtless formed the basis of the very active foreign demand, especially from France, which has affected our wheat market for the last two weeks. In north Germany, there had been, previous to July 1st, several weeks of rain, beating down the crops, and in localities the 'rust' prevailed, which had caused at sia appears to have extended westward | ings sold fairly at auction. through Roumania and southern Hungary, affecting very injuriously an important grain belt of country. Reports from Jassy, of June 28th, say 'the winter wheat is destroyed,' and similar reports come from the more southern points of Hungery. In England heavy rains have damaged the crops. It is this change in the European harvest and nominal. prospects that has been steadily trengthening the English and continental markets, and the result has been seen at New York in an extraordinary export of wheat and an equally extraordinary advance in prices." Exchange in our market is about stagnant. Gold closed on Thursday night at 1123, and by noon yesterday had fallen to 1113; in June it was up to 1174; here brokers would offer no more than 110 to 1101. They said they could not tell down to what it might drop. Nothing new transpired in the home securities, and werepeat quotations, remarking that fire and olice is weak at the figures, and some urning to the figures they showed on the first day of the week, middling 144c. New York and Liverpool were both firm, but what still more added to the confidence displayed in our market-a confidence that led several factors to cover up their samples and decline transactions—was the condition of the river here. It is bank-full, and telegrams stated that several streams in the Mississippi and the Ohio were again vomiting floods of water-if these rises continue, and a further swell comes on what now fills the channel, there must be overflow and loss of planted cotton, with an accompanying rise in price. Under these influences the tone was very stiff, and the official quotations at the close showed improvement in the figures. The closing elegrams were as follows: New York irm at 14 c. New Orleans dull at 14½c; sales, 125 bales; receipts, 89 bales. Liverpool firm at 6 15-16d; Orleans, 7.3 16d; sales, 10,000 bales, of which 5000 bales were American.
